

Lebanon is Farm Country, and one of Connecticut's largest agricultural communities!

With 10,000 acres of farmland (of which 5,000 are permanently preserved), Lebanon is a Connecticut capital for the cow and goat dairy, poultry, cheese-making and nursery industries.

Lebanon's historical and agricultural roots are inseparable as our farms continue to provide food and fiber necessary to sustain the masses -- just as they did at the time of our nation's founding!

Maintaining a significant agricultural base is the central theme of Lebanon's planning and development. Maintaining and growing Lebanon's agricultural base is not only good for the tax base, but is important to providing and protecting our treasured open spaces and scenic vistas, tourism and the local economy, wetlands and wildlife habitat, and public health.

By buying local YOU can support your community and neighbors and help keep Lebanon's farms and forests viable!
