

Lebanon is Farm Country and one of New England's largest agricultural communities!

Lebanon's historical and agricultural roots are inseparable. Its farms continue to provide food and fiber necessary to sustain the masses -- just as they did at the time of our nation's founding!

With almost 10,000 acres of farmland, of which 5,500 are permanently preserved, Lebanon is a Connecticut capital for the dairy, poultry, equine, and nursery industries.

Maintaining a significant agricultural base is a key focus of Lebanon's planning and development. Maintaining and growing Lebanon's agricultural land base is good for the tax base and important to providing and protecting our treasured opens spaces and scenic vistas, local economy and tourism, wetlands and wildlife habitat, and public health.

By buying local YOU support your neighbors and community and help keep Lebanon farms and forests viable!
